High Justice Will Be Meted Out at Arts and Crafts

As the last sheet of the Pine Cone goes to press, High Justice is being done at the Arts and Crafts Little Theater. In accordance with our policy, no criticism has been attempted from rehearsals of the play, and our judgment of the production will rest on the actual performance. The review will appear in next week's issue.

We give below, purely as news and in no way as criticism either favorable or unfavorable, certain facts regarding the play, players and production.

High Justice is a drama in four acts by Mae Harris Anson, a former newspaper woman of Minneapolis and now for several years a resident of Carmel. The play is based on a story by Stanley Weyman. It is wholly serious. The scenes are laid in Paris in the reign of Louis XIII, when Cardinal Richelieu was supreme in temporal power as well as head of the church in France.

There are eleven characters, and it requires good acting to portray them. In the cast will be found a large percentage of Carmel's finest players, headed by John Northern Hilliard and Blanche Tolmie.

High Justice calls for four distinct and separate scenes. Herbert Heron is a thoroughly modern producer and stages them all in one—though you don't realize it unless you deliberately check up. It will be recalled that Mr. Heron was the first producer in the Forest Theater to stage a play demanding different settings without either ignoring that demand or having the different sets. In staging The Countess Cathleen he presented, without actual changes of setting, four separate scenes of wholly distinct location and atmosphere. This was done at very small cost on the big outdoor stage by the concentration and diffusion of light, the use of alcoves, shifting of properties, and the variation of entrances through the woods. On the Arts and Crafts stage, only eighteen feet wide, some of these methods are impossible. But Mr. Heron's system for High Justice is equally practicable, and the change from one act to another can be made, if desired, in two minutes. And the whole production has cost far less than a second-hand super-Saxon, so there should be a good profit for the proposed Arts and Crafts Little Theater.

In Dr. Burton and his assistants, the producer has had the most sincere and intelligent co-operation in making the scenery of the play. Their labor has been imaginative, not imaginary. And if anyone can make a better cathedral window in two hours than Dr. Burton, let him come forward and offer his services.

Helena Conger, who made the effective costumes for Twelfth Night, and Rhoda Johnson, of Inehling and Shepherd's Bridge fame, have spent six weeks on the stunning apparel for High Justice.

James Worthington has forgotten the current eclipse of the moon, so wrapped up is he in the beautiful friar's robe of brown and white which the costumers have provided for him.

Lewis Josselyn has devoted many evenings to trying out the light plot, which is so important a part of the modern producer's design.

From what we can tell beforehand, High Justice should score high, and as it is the Little Theater's first full-length play, as it was written by a resident Carmelite, as a group of Carmel's best workers have devoted many weeks to its preparation, here's hope.

Toying With Highway

Rumors, counter rumors, allegations, denials, concerning present or future plans or lack of plans for the completion of the Carmel-San Simeon Highway prompted the editor of this journal to write a letter direct to headquarters—the chairman of the State Highway Commission; Harvey M. Toy—requesting a true statement of the facts in the matter. Herewith is the letter and the reply thereto:

Pine Cone to Toy

Harvey M. Toy,
Chairman State Highway Commission.

Dear Sir: A statement by you regarding the present or future plans of the Highway Commission concerning the Coast Road over that stretch between Monterey and San Simeon, would be of inestimable benefit to many in Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove and other places, in making plans along homebuilding, industrial and financial lines.

Such an article would not only provide an authoritative statement of facts to guide those interested, but would as well correct much misinformation now current.

Trusting you will find it advisable to comply with my request, I remain,

Very sincerely,
W. L. OVERSTREET,
Ed. Carmel Pine Cone.

Toy to Pine Cone

My Dear Mr. Overstreet:
I have just received your letter of Feb. 19. I will be very glad to make the following statement:

"The present highway commission finds itself without funds to carry on the full program of construction planned by the old highway commission. We are going to confine any efforts to main trunk highways and the connections of the transcontinental roads at Oregon, at Nevada, and Arizona.

"Until more money is raised by a gasoline tax or a bond issue the construction of the San Simeon road will not go ahead. The people of this state elected a governor, one of whose election pledges was the construction of main line highways and the connection of interstate roadways. Those he regards as most essential for the best interests of the state as a whole.

"The new highway commission is carrying out this pre-election pledge, which seems to meet with the hearty approval of the state of California and the people."

Yours very truly,

HARVEY M. TOY, Chairman,
State Highway Commission.

It will be noted that Toy says nothing concerning cancellation of contract, definite abandonment of work, the fact that the funds for this highway were specifically voted by the people, that the funds could not be diverted into other channels, and that there is contemplated a change in construction plans and specifications.

However, we are going to get our highway, either by resort to legal means or in other ways—most likely the latter.

Powerful influences are at work to put the project through. These influences are many and varied—personal, political, financial and federal—and will not be denied.

It is an interesting story.

Piano Fund Doing Nicely, Thank You

A high note was struck for the grand piano fund when Mrs. Ada Howe Kent paid fifty dollars for the Botke etching.

Among those who have put their names down for one dollar month for eighteen months are Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hogle, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Gould, Miss M. Hunkins Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Leidig, Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert Powell, John H. Flanner, Miss Margaret Stewart, Mrs. H. A. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Bragg.

If we are to believe Shakespeare's tale, that little affair between the house of Montague and the house of Capulet was some row. The foregoing statement is by way of comparison to the little controversy developing in Carmel. It is brought about by the desire of the subscribers to the Arts and Crafts piano fund to have their favorite make of piano installed. In this case it is the house of Steinway versus the house of Knabe.

Both are splendid instruments and worthy to grace the hall or the home.

ing that all goes well with this performance in support of the Arts and Crafts project for a new and better playhouse.

Josephine Kremm Dies in Carmel

After an illness of several months Miss Josephine Kremm passed away at her home here last Saturday night. She had been a resident of Carmel for about five years, during which period she endeared herself to many. Miss Kremm was a cousin of Mrs. William C. Watts. She was a native of Elizabeth, N. J. The funeral took place last Monday and interment was in the Monterey cemetery.

Mission Tea Room Under New Lessees

The picturesque tea house down by the Carmel Mission will again serve the public, but under a new management. Recently the place was leased by Mrs. Harriet McDonald of Monterey. She will be assisted by Mrs. Hazel Burwell.

Several interior alterations will be made, and a dance floor put down. The surrounding grounds will also be made attractive.

Afternoon tea will be served, and luncheons and dinners may be had. Special parties may be arranged for.

State Historical Society Now in Formative Stage

At a meeting held recently in San Francisco, plans were formulated for the organization of a California State Historical Association, whose purpose shall be to continue on a permanent basis the work of the State Historical Survey Commission.

The Historical Survey Commission, founded in 1915, has from the first filled an insistent demand for investigation and publication in matters of California's history, past and present. So emphatically has the work of the commission been recognized and endorsed as an essential function of the state that articulate expression has now been given to the need of making it a permanent feature of state activity.

The meeting in San Francisco was called by a committee appointed at the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Branch of the American Historical Association, recently held at Stanford university. On that occasion, following a paper read by Professor L. J. Paetow on the need of a historical society in California, a resolution was adopted recommending the creation of the association and the appointment of a committee of preliminary organization. Professor Paetow was made chairman of that committee.

The San Francisco meeting had an attendance representative of all parts of California. Professor Herbert E. Bolton, of the University of California, called the meeting to order. After reviewing the progress of historical work in this state, he nominated as temporary chairman William J. Hayes, chairman of the history committee of the Native Sons of the Golden West. Dr. Owen C. Coy, director and archivist of the present Historical Survey Commission, was named temporary secretary.

Mr. Hayes spoke of the enthusiastic work in California history performed by various unrelated groups throughout the state, and declared his belief that the great development of the movement has now begun.

Professor Paetow emphasized and supplemented the comments on the urgent need for a State Historical Association in California.

Dr. Coy spoke of the very live interest in matters historical in California. Paradoxically, although there is as yet no established state historical organization here, popular enthusiasm for the subject is strong, probably more than in any other state.

A committee on organization was appointed, consisting of Professor L. J. Paetow, chairman; William J. Hayes; Professor A. H. Abbott, of San Jose; Monseigneur Joseph M. Gleason, of Palo Alto, and Hon. Fletcher A. Cutler, of Eureka.

According to the plan for the new association as described in the bills regarding it now pending before the legislature, all citizens of the state and all organizations within the state, who are interested in California history, are eligible to membership in the association.

A significant fact is that the elements behind the new movement are by no means limited to the academic. They represent also business men who have long realized the commercial advantages of exploiting the romantic side of California's history; descendants of pioneers anxious to see compiled and preserved the epic of their fathers, and a great body of other men and women moved by an intelligent enthusiasm for the state of their choice.

In Monterey county, the cradle of California romance and history, should be formed the first unit of this important state organization, and a meeting for that purpose should be called at an early date.

No longer will that dark-visaged "Elisha" lay for the unwary motorist on Carmel Hill. He has been made chief of police by the Monterey city council, which job will keep him down where the bright lights are.

Pine Cone's Log of Literature & Art

With a view of improving the status of the British "Tommy" and fitting him for the struggle in life after his service in the army, the war office has devised a scheme of reading, a study which the soldier must follow if he wishes to obtain first-class and special certificates. After mastering the technicalities of the orthodox manuals, from "form fours" to the military law, he must become proficient in the wider ranges of modern weapons—the machine gun, the Hotchkiss gun, grenades and trench mortars. He must also read the following books:

Kingslake's "Eothen," Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities," Scott's "Old Mortality," Southey's "Life of Nelson," Books 3 and 4 of the "Golden Treasury," Conan Doyle's "White Company," "Selected English Essays," and Shakespeare's "King Henry V" and "Richard III."

Probably the largest pipe organ ever placed was given out the past year by the University of Rochester, Rochester, New York. It included one organ to have 154 stops, another organ with 94 stops, two studio organs with three banks of keys, and nine organs with two banks of keys for students to practice on. A contract has been let for a Cleveland municipal organ with more than 150 stops and a cost $100,000. A Chicago theater recently installed an instrument with 209 stop keys, although, of course, these were not all speaking stops. It was announced a little while ago that a Philadelphian had offered his city $120,000 to build the largest organ yet constructed. Portland, Maine; Denver, St. Paul, San Francisco and a score of other cities have municipal organs, where concerts are given regularly.

"Will Hays is nothing but a stuffed shirt. For even what little good he has done in the movies he is very cordially hated by one of the biggest companies which is hiring him."

That was the statement made by Peter B. Kyne, noted author and one of the biggest drawing cards in the movies, who has just sung his "swan song" to the industry, and bid it good bye with a friendly charge of dynamite.

"All day yesterday I was bothered by producers, who told me that I would get myself 'in bad' by my statements. 'I don't give a whoop'—only the author of Cappy Ricks didn't say "whoop."

"I'm through, and it's about time somebody tells the truth about the movies. They've been sweeping their dirt into the corners too long," and Will Hays is only their latest model of $150,000 dust broom."

Splashes and Splutter

The violin of the "fiddling pilot," recorded by Mark Twain, has been insured for $10,000 by the present owner.

Forty thousand volumes of "Wild West," detective and "Indian" stories were piled up and burned in Berlin under the supervision of the Association for the Protection of German Youths. The association has given the owners classical works in exchange.

The county commissioners of El Paso county, Colorado, have ordered signboards on public highways of the county removed within 90 days. The signboards obstruct highways, deface the scenery and are dangerous to travelers, the commissioners' resolution says.

Awkward, slow-witted, self-satisfied and dull, Nazimova at seventeen was sneeringly referred to as "the barrel." Today she is slender, graceful, vivid—one of the most fascinating figures on the modern stage. Her first theatre was the back room of a New York saloon. She was stage manager, prompter, wardrobe mistress, property "man," and leading lady. Not a cent did she receive as salary. And finally, the fire department closed her "theatre."

STEINWAY

The Instrument of the Immortals

IN the early days of the modern pianoforte, the Steinway became—and it has always remained—"the Instrument of the Immortals". Liszt, greatest of all pianists, pronounced the Steinway greatest of all pianos. Wagner, Rubinstein, Gounod and their brilliant contemporaries were equally quick to recognize and acclaim its pre-eminence.

Each year since those great beginnings, the Steinway has strengthened and increased its prestige with those who make and those who love great music.

One of the reasons for this is that the Steinway has always been made under the personal direction and the personal ownership of the Steinway family.

All the materials which go into a Steinway are available to the whole world—but the genius which transmutes them into Steinway Tone begins and ends with Steinway.

To make a piano is one thing—to make a piano for the immortals is another.

Padewski, Hofmann, Rachmaninoff—the Steinway is their chosen instrument just as it was Liszt's.

Is there any wonder that the mere presence of a Steinway in a home is a token of musical authority and distinction?

We shall be happy to help you choose your Steinway.

Vagrant Impressions of the Pine Nut

*If wishes were fishes
And fishes were dishes,
And dishes were horses,
All beggars might ride.*

*If I don't get that car,
I'll give up, by gosh;
I'll take cyanide by the jar,
Or leave for Oshkosh.*

Dear friends, please don't twit me about it, if I don't win out in the automobile contest. I've done everything that's humanly possible. For the last two weeks I've been the original town pest. Residents peek through the window and are afraid to answer the door to my ring; merchants, when they see me coming, associate me with a subscription blank and a cash till, and that's no joy to anyone that's always been a shrinking violet.

I've made pre-election promises enough to mortgage my freedom for the balance of my life—I know what Ben Wright is going through now in Monterey. I've promised every man in town, and some of their wives—not all of them, however—a ride in that car—if I get it. I got one six-dollar subscription out of Tom Reardon by threatening to take him to the next dance and threatening to dance every waltz with him if he didn't subscribe, and he did. Tom just can't stand any emotional sort of exercise. He's been that way ever since he played the front legs of the elephant.

Several of Carmel's citizens, notably the members of the new chamber of commerce, have been most active. Ray DeYoe was trying to figure out a way to stuff the ballot-box, but he was afraid we'd get in wrong with the Monterey people, so he called me into his office and took out another subscription in the name of his little boy. That's about the fourth one I've got out of that office, and if he keeps on he'll have to start all over again and change their names on the next round.

If I really do win the car it won't be mine. It will be Carmel's, and it certainly should be put to some public use. We'll call it Carmelita and make it a part of the fire engine outfit.

Tilly Polak has been boosting on the side lines. She takes it very seriously. I told her the other day that I thought it would be a good joke on me if I drew a victrola or a boy's gold watch. She can't see any humor in a situation of that kind. She said she'd be real mad if I dared to draw a watch.

Seriously, though, Carmel has been fine and generous and loyal, and I've been so filled with gratitude that I do not think it makes much difference whether I continue to plow over the hill safely in my old Rolls-Royce or go whizzing along, a menace to traffic, in a spanking new touring car. The blue bird waves its wings over one as well as the other if our hearts are ready to hear the soft flutter.

Excuse me, dear people, I'm about to weep, but I think instead I'll go out and watch that Durant car go by that I hear tooting down Monte Verde. I've heard it before and I recognize that special brand of toot.

I thank you.

The Serpent in Paradise

Once again the dog-poisoner has struck, and one of Carmel's most valuable animals was the victim.

It seems incredible that in a cultured and intelligent community such a fiendish act could be perpetrated.

The strangest part of all is the fact that our intelligence is of no use to us in a crime of this nature. I say "crime" because it is just that, and in nearly every case goes unpunished.

"You did not see it done," the law has it. A jail term and a heavy fine besides is the penalty for persons who place poisons about without posting notice to that effect.

The general indifference to offenses of this kind is deplorable. After the comment, "Too bad," interest ends. Why not employ the same methods that are used in handling other crime and place suspected persons under surveillance, also keep a strict watch on all who purchase poison. The authorities have a right to know what the drug is to be used for.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

The city manager plan of government for Carmel, mention of which was made in the Pine Cone recently, is the matter of considerable discussion just now. There appears to be no opposition to the plan, which is in successful operation in several California cities.

TREE-PLANTING WEEK

Arrangements have been completed to observe next week—March 4 to 10—as Tree Planting Week in California. The plan includes the observance of Arbor Day, March 7, and is intended to lay stress on the necessity for encouraging the planting of trees along the highways, in school grounds and parks, and in private gardens.

It is very fitting that the observance of a special week devoted to the planting of trees should be made a feature of California life, for it is in California that the greatest benefits and pleasures may be derived from the use of trees, and on Monterey Peninsula especially should the week be properly observed.

This movement is national in scope, and in almost every state of the Union its observance is being advocated by those who believe in the utility and beauty of trees. We take pride in this opportunity to aid in the success of the campaign in California, for we believe the people of this great commonwealth can add enormously to the beauty and comfort of life by increasing the number of trees around us, and we call upon all societies, clubs and organizations, in addition to all individual land owners, to join us in carrying it through to success.

MAKE A LIST OF YOUR "TEN BEST"

Practically without end is the making of lists of the ten best books, the hundred best books, and so forth. There is, of course, no end to any genuinely delightful and profitable occupation, such as the making of daisy chains, of embroidery or of love! But every time a list of such books is made, everyone is considerably interested, and a considerable advance is made.

The above is simply a long-winded way of saying that it is really worth while to amuse oneself making such lists. The making of them reminds one of the existence of great books, and also teaches much about one's own deeper tastes and feelings. All of those who would make a list of the ten books they think they would take with them to a desert isle must find out things about themselves in the course of the work of selection, must think, if for a moment only, of the things they like most in this world, where the things one likes the least occupy so prominent a portion of affairs.

See the Big Game Hunt in Monterey Next Week

H. A. Snow, in the course of his expedition into the heart of the Dark Continent, the ten-reel film record of which comes to the Monterey Theatre on Friday and Saturday of next week, when "Hunting Big Game in Africa With Gun and Camera" will be shown twice daily, acquired three lion cubs. He carried these pets through Africa and was able to land two of them alive at his home in Oakland.

This show will be well worth an afternoon or evening trip over the hill.

Charles Keeler, poet, author, and managing director of the Berkeley Chamber of Commerce, was here for a day this week with Mrs. Keeler. He is an enthusiastic advocate of the city manager form of government, recently adopted by his home city.

Treasurer Taylor's Successor Qualifies

The county treasurer's office is functioning again. Following the qualification of J. E. Steinbeck, who was chosen to take charge during the suspension of Treasurer James Taylor, County Clerk T. P. Joy handed Steinbeck the office keys, Taylor opened the vault and safes, showing Steinbeck the combinations, and the regular routine was commenced.

Prior to taking the official oath, Steinbeck filed a $150,000 bond. This was approved by the board of supervisors.

GETS OFF ON TECHNICALITY

James Taylor, Monterey county's suspended treasurer, won the first technical skirmish last week when Judge J. A. Bardin sustained a demurrer to the grand jury's accusation charging willful misconduct in office by withholding from the public funds $3,000 from January 7, last year, to November 14.

The demurrer was based on the ground that the accusation, on its face, showed that the alleged offense was not committed during Taylor's present term of office, Taylor having been re-elected in November last, commencing a new term on January 8, this year, a month before the accusation was filed. It is said the district attorney will appeal the case.

Who's Uncle Sam's Landlord?

The new Carmel postoffice building, the ground upon which it stands and adjoining ground are involved in a mass of legal controversy. It is a three-cornered affair in which Thomas W. Morgan Jr., of Carmel, T. A. Oakes, Santa Cruz contractor, and W. H. Abbott, Pebble Beach capitalist, are the principals. Validity of deeds and reconveyances and charges of fraud will be aired in the superior court at Salinas. Argyll Campbell and H. G. Jorgenson are the lawyers in the case.

Search Wins Gem

Last Monday night, following a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Flanders, Mrs. Opal Heron and Frederick Preston Search proceeded to Salinas and were married. Judge David Wallace tied the knot and Phil Wilson, Jr., was best man. Both are musicians of ability and will reside permanently in Carmel.

WE CAN'T SHAKE HIM

Rumors that Leonard W. Perry, because he sold some property here, was leaving town for good, are erroneous. "Oh, no," said he, "once a Carmelite, always a Carmelite. I sold the store building alright, but I'm going to build a bungalow on Monte Verde street, so I can always call Carmel home."

"Just now I am developing a new Pebble Beach and Carmel on Clear Lake, building some bungalows in Hollywood, and fixing up a little date orchard at Palm Springs."

Asked: "Where do you go from here," Perry replied, "to San Francisco, Pasadena and Palm Springs, to see Mosher."

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Phil K. Gordon has departed for Washington, D. C., where his father resides. He will be away several weeks.

Mrs. Arthur Goodfellow of Fresno was the guest of honor at a bridge tea at the home of Mrs. C. Halsted Yates.

Dr. A. T. Noe, well-known Peninsula practitioner, exponent of the Abrams method, has returned from his eastern journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crane are in San Francisco for a month. Who will take their places at the bridge table during their absence?

The local postoffice has a bright new American flag on a staff on the roof, a new cement sidewalk, and an electric light across the street. For all of which glory be.

Down Saturday, one night's sleep in their cottage here, and back to Alameda on Sunday. A long trip for a short stay; but Mr. and Mrs. Aunt King say Carmel is worth it.

The William P. Silvas are now in the states and expect to be home in May. Their residence here has been the week-end refuge of the Detricks, who have taken another cottage.

Mrs. D. Charles Gardner, wife of the Stanford University chaplain, and her son Sherman were recent visitors here. The young man contemplates farming in the Santa Clara valley.

John Jordan, recently in an auto mishap, is getting better and better in every way every day. Appetite increasing, bones no longer ache, and conversation and vocabulary back to normal. On with the dance!

Miss Harriet Butcher is married. The ceremony took place last week, and the couple are on the way to China. The groom is Frederick H. Steele of Marion, Ohio. Mrs. Steele is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Preston W. Search.

Frank Lee of this city and William DeAmaral of Point Lobos are lucky to be alive. Their car plunged over an embankment down at the Highlands last Monday. Both jumped clear of the machine, however, and were not seriously injured.

John N. Hilliard has accepted the tender of the directors of the Forest Theatre to produce the recently selected this year's prize-winning summer play, "Hassau." With "The Yellow Jacket" in mind, we may look forward to a splendid production.

The fourth and final concert of the Artists' Series given in Monterey is to take place in April. The artist on this occasion will be Madam Irene Pavloska, Polish-Canadian coloratura soprano. She has been heard here before, and she will draw the largest audience of the series. We know her and she knows us. She is a magnetic artist.

Frederick Bentz, banking expert, of San Francisco, a friend of Barnett Segal, was here this week. He was on his way south.

D. D. Oliphant, Sr. and daughter Abbie are here for a few weeks from San Francisco. They are in the Carruthers cottage on San Antonio st.

Mrs. F. S. Rice and daughter, who have been in the south for some time, are again in Carmel. They have as guests Mrs. O. F. Hypes and Miss Mary Johnson, both of Springfield, Ohio.

J. Rollo Peters, the artist, is making a brief visit on the Peninsula. Monterey is his old stamping ground. His work of late has developed some interesting studies of the California missions.

Member those Stanford Glee Club boys who were here last year? Of course. Well, they're coming again to sing for us. They will be at Arts and Crafts Hall on Thursday evening, March 22. That's just about three weeks, girls.

The entire frame is up for the Watts house at Wildcat Canyon, and this week work was begun on the exterior stucco work. Contractor De Witt Appleton has a large force of men at work, and it will not be long before the building and grounds will be completed.

Through the efforts of John B. Jordan and his hard-working associates the Arts and Crafts little theatre fund is enriched in the amount of $150. This is the financial outcome of the Twelfth Night affair a short time ago. The Pine Inn management assumed the entire expense.

Provided only that the sum be expended within the next three months, the county board of supervisors have appropriated $1000 for the purpose of assisting the U. S. bureau of biological survey and the California department of agriculture in the campaign for the control of predatory animals.

Two dollars a year will keep yourself or friends informed through the columns of the Pine Cone.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

TWO LOGICAL MYSTERY STORIES

Like nearly everyone else, undoubtedly you are fond of those stories which blend mystery and romance. We don't mean those unwholesome mysteries which cannot be solved without bringing some uncanny element into the unraveling. We think you will agree that it is all right to deal, to a limited extent, with uncanny incidents, because many of the actual happenings of life are uncanny; but you are sane and have your feet on the ground, and when it comes to the solution of a mystery you want it to be regular and wholesome, and to square with natural facts and conditions.

In "The Blind Man's Eyes," written jointly by the clever novelists, William MacHarg and Edwin Balmer, you will find a charming romance and the most baffling mystery—a series of mysteries in fact—that you ever have encountered in real life or in the pages of a book. Not only will you be vastly pleased with the way in which the story is told, but it will give you an opportunity to exercise your wits, your powers of divination or your guessing faculties. At the end you will find the solution as unexpected as it is logical.

"Out of the Darkness," Charles J. Dutton's story, contains a suggestion for obtaining confessions that you will feel is a decided improvement on the old "third-degree" methods. We are not going to spoil the pleasure you will get from the reading by revealing it in advance, but we will volunteer a few of its interesting phases. The detective was called in to solve what appeared to be a simple case of burglary. He quickly found that it involved something more important. In the midst of his investigations a mysterious murder occurred. At the inquest called on the scene of the killing, one of the chief witnesses also was murdered, in the presence of a hundred people, and no one knew who committed the deed.

Evidence disappeared and clues led astray in a manner almost as mysterious as the crimes. The detective was baffled, but only for a time. Instead of the old-fashioned grillings, quizzings and possibly more brutal methods which every criminal expects and prepares himself to meet, the clever criminologist staged a scene in which he worked upon the superstitions and fears of the guilty party. The result was surprising and brought a confession from a most unexpected source. Even if you are a practiced follower of detective stories and one who reads them in order to match your wits against the author's, we doubt if you will be able to guess the solution of this mystery.

Pine Needles

The T. A. Oakes two-story building next to the Carmel postoffice is well under way. There will be two stores and four apartments above.

There are two bright, new Fords running around town, and the proud owners are Thomas S. Parkhurst and Miss Florence V. Wilson. Honk, honk!

Some one poisoned Allen Griffin's collie, Ajax, last Friday, and now a hundred dollars awaits anyone who positively identifies the guilty person. On the job, Gus!

Numerous bakery supply firms have tendered to Messrs. Wetzel and Huseman, who were recently burned out, every assistance toward the re-establishment of the Carmel Bakery.

The M. A. Hannon house, overlooking Carmel bay, is completed, and the George O. Carroll house at Pebble Beach will be turned over to the owner shortly. These are both M. J. Murphy jobs.

The Perry building on Ocean avenue, housing the Carmel Investment Co. and Cabbages and Kings, has been sold to Mrs. Constance S. Lowell, through Mrs. Jennie Coleman. Mrs. Lowell recently acquired the Jackson house on Dolores street, and other local property.

The regular monthly meeting of the Carmel city trustees takes place next Tuesday evening. Among the matters to come up will be the second and final reading of the Chanticleer ordinance, action on the Flanders street closing matter, and the Ocean avenue parking space problem.

A little theatre has been established at the Hotel Vendome in San Jose. David B. Gally of the Missiontown Players will be in charge. The first performance takes place this evening under the auspices of a group of club women. At each performance it is the plan to produce at least one single-act play by a San Jose author.

Clinton Seollard, well-known poet, who has been sojourning here, is away for a short time. We repeat—a short time, because Carmel has the call on the east.

Work on reconstructing the Carmel Bakery, recently destroyed by fire, is in the hands of Contractor L. E. Gottfried. The establishment will be ready for business about April 1. This same contractor is also building a five-room dwelling for Miss M. L. Palmer on Carmelo street between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues.

Miss Marian Farley of New York, said to be the only girl cartoonist in the U. S. A., is a visitor here, being a guest of her uncle, Gene Byrnes. Miss Farley is the creator of the "Miss Contrary" series.

"Wind-Swept Cypress Trees," Prof. A. H. Schreff's painting, was awarded first prize at the annual Northwest Artists' exhibition at Seattle. Schreff is professor of fine arts in the University of Oregon. He has a studio in Carmel.

Miss Jean N. McIlwraith, a while ago a Carmel sojourner, whose home is in Ontario, has been advised by a firm of Canadian publishers that her story, "The Little Admiral," has been awarded a $500 prize for the best story submitted by a Canadian author for juvenile readers.

Opportunities

FOR SALE—Improved and unimproved property for sale; close in. Address Box 604.

WANTED—to have small family washing done at home of worker; address P. O. Box 156, Carmel.

WANTED—Carpenter jobbing or any work by the hour. Inquire for Mac at Guichard dry goods store.

FOR SALE—A drop-head New Home Sewing Machine. Price $16.50. Inquire Pine Cone office.

NAVAJO RUGS—For best quality and right prices in these rugs, direct from the Indian Reservation in New Mexico, see Miss L. R. Liehtenthaler, at bungalow, Lincoln street, near Ninth avenue.

FOR SALE—Gentleman's dress suit, good as new, with shirts and dancing pumps, and plain gray suit. Both size 38. Write P. O. Box 464, Carmel.
